Boston

Patty Griffin

I went back to Boston Back to the City of Lost Love I went back to the place And recognized your face in the stone long gone

I walked around Harvard Square All the runaway kids are still hanging out there I took the red line a wrong way Across the River Charles

Something's changed track And they never fly And they never fly Reach up from the waves You'll find that you're only waving goodbye

I went walking in Boston A little bridge I used to walk on I was slipping on a hog And I flung into that sea of strong Processing need not apply For you to license to fly Hey young lady don't be so suprised You know you're not alone

Something's changed track And they never fly And they never fly Reach up from the waves You'll find that you're only waving goodbye

It was Memorial Day I went to where you lay There were thousands of people Just like you in a chain graveyard

You came out of there awake Looking for the sky And got a slap in the face Well hey Desperate needs a big led And gets put in the place You better know your place boy

Something's changed track And they never fly And they never fly Reach up from the waves You'll find that you're only waving goodbye

Only waving You're only waving You're only waving You're only waving goodbye Goodbye
