

Where Does the Time Go?

Paul Carrack

Where does the time go
Like the tip of an arrow
It flies through the cold air
Over long winter's day
Where does the time go
If only we knew
I would take you there
To see our love grow
Where does the time go

And you're looking back on the things you said
And you're holding back as you chase the thread
Words and dreams you've always had
For the future
When you're passing through over idle ways
That you once believed would fill up your days
That you needed then but you don't need now
To confuse you

Where does the time go
Like the tip of an arrow
It flies through the cold air
Over long winter's day
Where does the time go
If only we knew
I would take you there
To see our love grow
Where does the time go

When you add it up there's so much to lose
From the past that lives in the hollow you
If you don't respect that time, it fades
It will not come back to be part of you

Living in the now is the thing to do
Where the past belongs is inside of you
And the future waits like a clear blue sky
To seduce you

Where does the time go
Like the tip of an arrow
It flies through the cold air
Over long winter's day
Where does the time go
If only we knew
I would take you there
To see our love grow
Where does the time go
To see our love grow
Where does the time go
