

All I'm Asking

Paul McDonald

I'm looking at you through the glass on the wall
Waiting on faith and a telephone call
And you love me, you leave me, you love me, you leave me, you do
But I'll stay up night, my love, being bluer than blue

And your hair reminds me of sugar and cane
Your eyes shine brighter than sunniest days
I love you, darling, but do you love me the same?
All I'm asking, all I'm asking you for is your love
All I'm asking, all I'm asking you for is your love

I'm looking right through you, you're glass on my wall
I'd say, "pick me up", but I ain't even tired to fall
Cause the colder don't come, and when it's quiet, I run
And it burns like the sun on my skin
And I'm dying inside, just waiting to see you again

And your hair reminds me of sugar and cane
Your eyes shine brighter than sunniest days
I love you, darling, but do you love me the same?
All I'm asking, all I'm asking you for is your love
All I'm asking, all I'm asking you for is your love

I ain't never been much of a man of God
I ain't perfect, ain't honest, that's true
Been running away for so many days
And it leads me right back to you

I love you, darling, but do you love me the same?
All I'm asking, all I'm asking you for is your love
All I'm asking, all I'm asking you for is your love
