

Tidal Wave

Pentagram

Breakers falling hard with power fit to break your neck stone cold ice filled waters that night would bring ship wreck and all the crew on duty were confined to low deck not much longer for all around would fold and beckon to the hand of the tidal wave stuck in the no win cave it was a breathless grave to feel the tidal wave with not a soul to save how many fathoms hosted how much bone for such a large sized family there'd be no home were only separate bodies and parts left to float on foam and soon the blue and green skin tone all left to comb after the
tidal wave
stuck in no win cave
it was a breathless grave
for each gave his soul to serve the tidal wave was a tidal wave they heeded underground to hear the void of sound and never to be found none would remain to teach there was a contract breach and while they prayed for beach the structure had no lease so as they head for rocks and cliffs steered towards the siren's sound applaud a blinding light no more would they see the light they headed further down to greet the tidal wave and find the softer ground now all were to be drowned they were Atlantis bound