

The Finest Prize

Per Gessle

She greeted the morning sun
All the seagulls were flying low and she
She started her daily routine
Without thinking without knowing
She smiled when she thought of Jim
All the satellites were standing by and she
She hoped she could tune in him
When she closed her eyes

Oooh her life was good and she
She'd won the finest prize and she
She didn't feel the pain
It was all in the past
Gone almost forgotten

He stayed with the garden beds
Any hour any given day and he
He nursed lilies and violets
Treating them like friends

Oooh his life was good and he
He'd won the finest prize and he
He'd never felt the pain
It was closed in the past
Gone almost forgotten

Oooh her life was good and she
She'd won the finest prize and she
She didn't feel the pain
It was all in the past
Gone almost forgotten

Oooh his life was good and he
He'd won the finest prize and he
He'd never felt the pain
It was closed in the past
Gone almost forgotten

Aahhh, ahhh...
Hey, hey...
Mmm, mmmm

Hey!

Oooh her life was good and she
She'd won the finest prize and she
She didn't feel the pain
She'd never felt the pain
She'd never felt the pain
