

Gently the sun disbands the day
She welcomes the night
And its keeper the moon

One moment for eternity
The world immersed in light
Staggering, quietly

Nature holds breathing
And the wind bears in mind
A fated love

Sun sets with a sigh
She adores the moon
But their love cannot be

A rainbow solaces her soul
And heaven is crying
Each ray of light longs for the moon

The wind is murmuring an elegy
The moon guards our nights
But each thought obtains the sun

Stars shine for his love
Beautiful and bright
Diamonds in the dead of the night

The moon surrenders the night
Perfect light
The world stops turning
When sun and moon kiss gently
Sunrise...