

I remember the time I was so far gone
I was on the streets, there was no one home
And the sunlight would never shine
And the days would ache, and the nights would crawl
And I was shaking like a re-entry fall
Just waiting to burn up in the sky
Then you took my hand and you blessed my soul
And covered me with all your gold
With kindness that I was so blind

That's when I knew my heart was completely connected
To your soul, that was deeply so buried
And your love, then it swelled up and sent me
So high, but I came down so gently

The time was cold and the moment was gray
And how in the hell did I get this way
Not knowing what I have become
Then you took my day and you warmed my soul
And you changed my life and made me roll
Until all my dying inside was done
And you carried me through my darkest pain
My death was gone, my angel came
And there you stood, exploding in my mind

That's when I knew my heart was completely connected
To your soul, that was deeply so buried
And your love, then it swelled up and sent me
So high, but I came down so gently
Here, right here, to fall straight into your arms

That's when I knew my heart was completely connected
To your soul, that was deeply so buried
And your love, then it swelled up and sent me
So high, but I came down so gently
Here, right here, to fall straight into your arms
