

Just Another Guy

Peter Green

And now my sky is blue and the night times ain't the same without you 'cause you danced with someone else while i'm here waiting by myself another hand, another face another smile to take my place he's holding you as once did i but now i'm just a distant cry of just another guy, just another guy like me and just another guy, just another guy like me and now the night is cold and soon another morning will unfold but you come back, you always do and i'll be here to welcome you another walk, another talk another road that leads to love his smile is warm as once was mine but that was in another time just another guy, just another guy like me just another guy, just another guy like me i'm saying just another guy, just another guy like me just another guy, just another guy like me
just another guy, just another guy like me
just another guy, just another guy like me