

Colorblind

Phora

And I might never leave your side
I might try to make shit right
But you can't see through all my lies
Colorblind to the light
And I might never leave your side
I might try to make shit right
But you can't see through all my lies
Colorblind to the light

It gets so hard to breathe when you're around
'Cause your face is all I see when you're around
It gets so hard to breathe when you're around
'Cause your face is all I see when you're around
When you're around

I mean, listen
Knew me through phases in my life, you held me down through my worst
Made me see the brighter sky when all I knew was the dirt
You took the baggage that I had like it fit right in your purse
But they say the people that you love the most in life give you hurt
Made you foolish standing next to me
Even still, you're praying for the best for me
I don't deserve the kindness you had left for me, look
I know I made mistakes despite how you react
So I understand if reasons you refuse to take me back, listen
I lost a friend worth more than diamonds and gold
You let me slip once, I started to think how far I could go
I can't apologize forever, that shit starts to get old
I'm just sick of sleeping alone, empty words on the phone
I see the moon and it reminds me of you
A broken soul, a butterfly that's trapped inside a cocoon
I had a dream I spent my life inside a garden, it grew
The reddest roses realize I should be right there with you

And I might never leave your side
I might try to make shit right
But you can't see through all my lies
Colorblind to the light
And I might never leave your side
I might try to make shit right
But you can't see through all my lies
Colorblind to the light

It gets so hard to breathe when you're around
'Cause your face is all I see when you're around
It gets so hard to breathe when you're around
'Cause your face is all I see when you're around
When you're around

Leave your side
Try to make shit right
See through all my lies
To the light
Leave your side
Try to make shit right
See through all my lies
To the light