Phum Viphurit

When you were gone
I wasn't lonely
Could hear myself talk
My life was healthy
But then, you return, making days into eternity
Without concern, you take it all like you own it all
Counting endless beams of light
Slipping through the blinds
Casting patterns on your face
I miss your embrace

Where did you go?
Why did we hold on when our love is old
There's nothing to grow on
You feel like an island and I'm floating far away
