

Something Wild

The Pogues

When you're in a cold sweat
She'll come and soothe your brow
Taste the beer inside you
There ain't no stopping you now.

You're falling again
Going out of your brain
She comes around with a smile
You know she's something wild.

You know she's something wild
You know she's something wild
You know she's something wild
And you dribble like a little child.

You see a river burning
You're far away from shore
There's no going back now
You don't care any more.

You're falling again
Going out of your brain
She comes around with a smile
You know she's something wild.

You know she's something wild
You know she's something wild
You know she's something wild
She's got you dribbling like a little child.

Prettiest woman that you've ever seen
You close your eyes and you start to dream
All your nightmares so far behind
You know she's something wild.

You know she's something wild
You know she's something wild
You know she's something wild
She's got you dribbling like a little child.

You know she's something wild
You know she's something wild
You know she's something wild
She's got you dribbling like a little child.

You know she's something wild...
