

My Tears Are Overdue

Porter Wagoner

If you want to see somebody cry their heart out
For a love they lost and must live without
If you're not afraid my misery might revolve on you
Just hang around my tears are overdue

If you want to hear confessions of a broken man
Who once held a world of love right in his hands
If you wanna see a heartbreak right into the front of you
Just hang around my tears are overdue

Now there's not a way that I can say how much it really hurts
When a broken heart and guilty conscience starts to worse

I hope you won't forget the sight you've seen today
Just remember love I had then threw away
If you're not afraid my misery might revolve on you
Just hang around my tears are overdue
If you're not afraid my misery might revolve on you
Just hang around my tears are overdue
