

Threads

Presence

We were kids when we first met
We fell in love, but could not admit that we did
At least that's how I envision it

I lay in my bed
Then you pop in my head
I think of something else
Then you pop back again
Oh

Why won't you just leave me alone
You've been tormenting my mind so long
And why can't I ever seem to move on
I've got much bigger things to go on and do

I'm stuck Inside
The threads of your beautiful mind
I try to fix my eyes
On something that isn't your eyes, but it never works out

I loved you from the day that I met you
But my best friend loved you too
I couldn't tell you how I really felt
Cause if I did then I'd hurt them too
And I couldn't stand to hurt someone I love so
I just hurt myself instead

I lay in my bed
Then you pop in my head
Why am I back to this place again?

Why won't you just leave me alone
You've been tormenting my mind so long
And why can't I ever seem to move on
I've got much bigger things to go on and do

I'm stuck Inside
The threads of your beautiful mind
I try to fix my eyes
On something that isn't your eyes, but it never works out