

Better Alone

Priscilla Block

I paid for some knowledge, then dropped outta college
They only acknowledge degrees
And all of the fairytales
Said I'd be married now
I found that love ain't for me
Here I go leaving again

Don't ask me why
I'm always gone
I wish you'd try minding your own
Never asked for a yes
Hell, I don't need a no
I'm better alone
I'm better alone

They said he's the one
But my heart's on the run
And they told me I'm losing my mind
So I packed up my stuff and threw it in the trunk
And I left without saying goodbye

Here I go leaving again
Don't ask me why I'm always gone
I wish you'd try minding your own
I never asked for a yes
Hell, I don't need a no
Soon you'll find out
I'm better alone
I'm better alone

This is my life, I don't need your advice
You say that you care, but I don't
So don't ask me why I'm always gone
I wish you'd try minding your own
Don't ask me why I'm always gone
I never asked for a yes
Hell, I don't need a no
Soon you'll find out
I'm better alone
I'm better alone
I'm better alone
I'm better alone
