

I Swear I've Been Here Before

Punchline

Why can't I remember anything
We're so focused on the future we forget to sleep
The days become a blur and the years become a dream
Everybody else is standing still
We are flying past them on a ferris wheel
But if we're moving in circles
Then is any of this real

I swear I've been here before
Is it all an illusion
Or are we left where we begin
What were we ever fighting for
We are dreamers lost in fascination
Welcome to my imagination

The only thing that we've changed is our clothes
We haven't beat the habits
We've seen friends come and go
So we still have each other
And the titles are all we know
All my old friends are on my front lawn asking me
When are you coming home

I swear I've been here before
Is it all an illusion
Or are we left where we begin
What were we ever fighting for
We are dreamers lost in fascination
Welcome to my imagination

When I stroll through my mind
Every turn that I take
Leaves me restless and lost and cold and defeated
When I walk through my town
Looking back on this place
Leaves me glad that I took a shot
And I came back here and I never conceded

I swear I've been here before
Is it all an illusion
Or are we back where we begin
What were we ever fighting for
We are dreamers lost in fascination

I swear I've been here before
Is it all an illusion
Or are we left where we begin
What were we ever fighting for
We are dreamers lost in fascination
Welcome
Welcome to my imagination
Welcome to my imagination
