

Don't Know Any Better

Puressence

Well I'm coming home again on a future missing plane and there's water on the window a message in the rain

Just when I thought all was lost nothing could describe it If you're fighting for a cause nobody should hide it

Here's my excuse, here's my excuse and I don't know any better who do you lose, who do you lose when you don't know any better

Well I'm driving home again try to lose the pain she gain and the radio explains someone else just took my place

Here's my excuse, here's my excuse
and I don't know any better Falling for you, falling for you cause I don't know any better

You think we are all the same..
You think I'll never change..