

Something More

Quarterflash

She's warm and loving in a
Picture from the war
She had everything in life worth living for
But I guess a part of her was missing
That connects the heart to soul
And one day she left us all for something more
For something more
Looking for something
Something more
Looking for something more
I don't know what she was looking for
But she left us to look for something more
There's part of her inside me
And I knew I shared the soul

I slipped on my mother's ring and closed that door
I left my home and father for a dancer no one knows
Now I out here on my own for something more
For something more
Looking for something
Something more
Looking for something more
I don't know what I'm something looking for
But I'm looking looking for something
Looking for something more
Something more
Looking for something more
Every heart needs an open door
To keep looking keep looking for something
There's a mystery that pull us
Like the ocean to the moon
There's a river to the heart that I looking for
The part of me that missing
Is the love that left to soon
I've give it all giving it all away for something more
Looking for something something more
Looking for something more
I don't know what I am looking for
But I looking for something more
Something more
Something more
Every heart needs an open door
To keep looking keep looking for something
