More than you wish, I'm all yours
Cut me up anyway you like
And take my blood too, one-time offer

Teardrops from the eyes are too good to shed
Save it in a glass, don't let it be a waste
I want to drink it all up

Locked are the tears that are full of all things that make us human

If you touch it will break
If you don't touch it will collapse
I'll watch over you here and sing
To keep a legacy of our great history alive

Words from your mouth drip to the middlemost
I squirm and dodge so that it won't cut deep

Despair, hope, awe, calmness, subtleties, pleasure
Heaven and hell even frenzy, all depends on you

Today I will dance on the palm of your hand
Might as well, a perfect swing

On the land I was blown off to stand I preach love neither too much nor too little

If you touch it will break
If you don't touch it will collapse
I'll watch over you here and sing
To keep the theorems of the universe alive

Hand-me-down kisses, worn-out "I love you"-s
You say you'll cherish and smile
Two lines on your cheek made me respond

So I touched
Before it breaks
And held tight for a long time

If you touch it will break
If you don't touch it will collapse
Still I reach
To pick up all the pieces, was that alright?

I must touch now with this hand
Before it collapses
I want to touch you as a whole
Before you break or collapse, to grow and start
I sing
