If you weren't here
I'm sure the world would end too
Because the world can revolve around nothing but you

When you are happy
I'm sure the world smiles too
Because the world can only harmonise with you

If you weren't here
Then I would definitely disappear too
Because I can only live inside you

The morning when we met
The world called to me
Softly it told me that I should protect you

Will you save me?

When you aren't here, there isn't anything
It's true you saved this world today again

Don't erase me, don't separate from me; connect with me
It's true, you lived and today lived too
Thank you for it

The morning you were born
Surely the world was born too
Continuously the two of you have piled up the same age together

When you turn in your sleep
The world definitely wakes up
Heaves a sigh of relief and falls asleep again

Without anyone realising, without breaking down
You are creating history, dispersing the stars and watching over us

Will you let me live?

When you aren't here, there isn't anything
You and this world are everything that concerns me

Don't erase the meaning, don't separate from me; connect with me
The world too breathes the air you exhale today

The world stops each time you blink
The world falls silent whenever you cover your ears
Such a life as one of your blinks
But you hold this world in those hands of yours

Even if I weren't here the world would surely go on Because I can't live anywhere but inside you
Because the world can't live anywhere except inside you

You see, you see, you see, you see
You see, you see, you see, you see
