It's a beautiful night where it seems okay for your voice to echo through the whole sky
In order to allow sadness to not end up as sadness at least, the earth went on revolving

I was made to convey badly the thoughts that I really wanted to convey
So that I wouldn't feel all that irritation at least I smiled

You who laughed "there's nothing here" also wished that Such a voice too could be erased by the swelling universe

I who screamed "it's meaningless" also wished to Comprehend the dullness of the floating grains of light in front of me

Recently I've been watching too many movies, so miracles have become all too common
And I have come to say things without thought smoothly

Look, I'm getting farther apart from myself, and I even want to forget these things
Please say "the truth is just that beautiful"

It's a beautiful night where it seems okay for your voice to echo through the whole sky
So I wouldn't suspect that sadness would end as sadness, god showed me a dream

I guess I shall try drawing on the open page now
"Don't let go, I want to hold, my own hand"

It feels like the still scenery has now started to move
Look, my heart beat too, has started beating in a steady 4-beat-rhythm

The awkward me will try to express too
The meaning of smiling and embracing the tomorrow which heads towards the end
