

One World

Rage

We reached a level that we cannot play no more
Our hard drive is dated, reached its overload
And all the spaces where life could have made a stand
Reduced to a minimum, drowned desert land

Time has slipped through our hands
We closed our eyes to see
What then would come to be reality

One world, too many people
One world, deadly mistreated
The uninvited stranger at your door
Is running for his life but space is poor
We only have one world

Increasing damage, depletion and littering
The rainforest tragedy, the glacial melt
National interest of profit was overrated
The price it was global, our children must pay

Time has slipped through our hands
We closed our eyes to see
What then would come to be reality

One world, too many people
One world, deadly mistreated
The uninvited stranger at your door
Is running for his life but help is poor
We only have one world

One world, too many people
One world, deadly mistreated
The uninvited stranger at your door
Is running for his life but space is poor
We only have one world
We only have one world
We only have one world
