

You All Leave

RAM

A wind of emptiness, whistles and howls within me
It whispers names that makes my weary heart freeze
All that you left is a shadow cast upon my life
A mirror in shards and it cuts deep like a knife

The sadness that you bore is now my oak to bear
You left it but it has not gone anywhere
At times I'm ready to take the same road as you did
But a fog veils that path, I can never come through

This world kills all of the souls that are true
Can you blame those who go before they are due?
Beneath the scar tissue you can see my black, battered heart
My pain is like yours but I just cannot depart

You all leave
You sought the end of the road
You all leave
At last you met your destiny
You all leave
No return, no words, no denial
You all leave
Leave for all eternity
