

Me

Ray Stevens

Nancy made me nervous, so sure of herself.
I stutter and stammer when I spoke.
Sally may be silly, we laughed all the time.
We wound up just telling corny jokes.
Lizzie made me dizzy, she talked a blue streak.
Just trying to pay attention was unreal.
But you, you seem no natural and honest when you speak.
It's easy bein' with you 'cause I feel like, Me.

The way I always thought I ought to be.
You found that magic hidden key that set my feeling's free and
they sang like poetry full of love's simplicity.
I know that I need no apology for bein' Me, just Me.

I guess I might sound selfish but I'm really not.
'Cause now that I know just who I am.
I think I kind of like Me. I gotta lot to give.
Where before I really didn't give a damn.
And baby you know I love you for loving me enough.
To help me see myself how did you know?
That I couldn't care for anyother 'til I knew myself enough to take the chance to grow into, Me.

The way I always thought I ought to be.
You found that magic hidden key that set my feeling's free and
they sang like poetry full of love's simplicity.
I know that I need no apology for bein' Me, just Me.

You found Me.
