Within Your Eyes

Ray Thomas

Within your eyes so many good hellos and sad good-byes
Your future shines the past reclines
Yet still you seek to find
A place to run you can't hide yourself behind the sun
Your wings will burn you'll never learn
That life must carry on

For you could be the dancing breeze
That moves the trees to shed their leaves around you
Or you could be the light in me
That shows the way my life could be around you

When you feel low you try so hard but still you let it show
Such foolish pride you're hurt inside
I know so why pretend
When love goes wrong you're left to sing a very empty song
Your love was blind but that's no crime
True love is hard to find

But you could be the dancing breeze
That moves the trees to shed their leaves around you
Or you could be the light in me
That shows the way my life could be around you
