Remember The Laughter

Ray Toro

It's time to let go.
Air has gotten thin.
Machine has broken in.
Say your goodbyes.

It's time to relax.
I won't hurt no more.
The nurse will show you the door
As I fade away.

It's time to let go.
Air has gotten thin.
Machine has broken in.
Say your goodbyes.

It's time to go home.
Faces sunken low.
The curtain has finally closed
For the last time.

Please don't leave me, what will I do?
Don't worry now son, you'll pull through.
Who will love and care for me?
Someone good, my son, you'll see.
What about all my hopes and dreams?
Never give up son. Please believe.

I'm gonna miss you.
I'm gonna miss you.
I'm gonna miss you...

Daddy's leaving.
Mother has too.
All of the good things
We've given to you.

Remember the laughter
And none of the tears.
We tried our best
Year after year.

I'll sing you this lullaby
For the last time.

It goes

La La La La La La

Remember Me.
