

Right Or Wrong

Read Southall Band

No one ever told you that you weren't good enough
No one ran your name through that mud
If you had half the mind to do something
You'd get a grip and then you'd stand up
People are dying just to feel a little something
You can't keep it all to yourselves
There's a reason for what you're feeling
Go out there and then you give them hell

So find whatever answers you're after
Hold onto the truth you've always known
If you don't know by now then you may never
'Cause it ain't black and white it's right or wrong

Well you should have known that you were no different
We're all burning at both ends
And we're so god damn uncomfortable
Sitting in our own skin
Well these questions cloud my mind
Sometimes I can't even sleep
I can't rest or much less function
When I need to move my feet

So find whatever answers you're after
Hold onto the truth you've always known
If you don't know by now then you may never
'Cause it ain't black and white it's right or wrong

If you don't know by now
Then you may never
If you don't know by now
Then you may never
If you don't know by now
Then you may never
If you don't know by now
Then you may never

So find whatever answers you're after
Hold onto the truth you've always known
If you don't know by now then you may never
'Cause it ain't black and white it's right or wrong