

Breaking Curfew

Red Rider

Walk out through the rain

Where the sound of your own footsteps speak of change

When we take our refuge in a higher place

Somewhere no one knows, we'll meet it face to face

Breaking the curfew, walking where we want to

Dodging the big lights up on the wall, stand tall

Stand up, don't slip away

Thought they had you tied and beaten, not today

When someone tries to tell you that I was never here

Or our love is obsolete, turn away, stand clear

Breaking the curfew, walking where we want to

Dodging the big lights up on the wall, stand tall

Look out, don't walk away

Could have been that finest hour, break the chains

We're the ones who feed the wind that blow again

Screams behind the barricade, stop the bloody rain

Breaking the curfew, walking where we want to

Dodging the big lights up on the wall, stand tall

Dodging the big lights up on the wall, stand tall
