

Coda

Reflections

Still, trembling wind
Tell me that story once again
If I could only hear it once more
Maybe I'd find all of the happiness
I had before

Lay by my side, mesmerized
In this void, there is infinite time
I will be yours if you'll always be mine
I hope I find you in another life

Goodbye tranquil thought
Every second is so distraught
Dear time, where did you go
All I see are dying trees
As I stare through my window

My heart is empty now
Inside this abyss
I know that I will drown

Nothing lasts forever
And so to me it seems
As the days grow evermore
I have no words to speak
Now the question is
Have I moved on
What was my only purpose
Now simply feels gone

Every part of me used to be you
But as time has brought us through
I began to see a different view

Who is this person that I have become
So attached to being someone

We are only an idea
In our own mind
Breathing in and wasting life
I fear I feel nothing anymore
Nothing matters the way it did before

People only care
In the order of the numbers
Either you're a slave
Or you will be among the forgotten
As the curtains close
All of what comes must go
This was never my home
Inside my soul
I am alone