You Again

Reverend and the Makers

It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again

I don't think of you at all
Except the 55 times a day I check if you called
Or when I'm climbin' up the walls
All the things they've seen, what would they say if they could talk?
And I still have your records
Like the soundtrack to my own damn tragedy
I don't think of you at all
But when I think of you, do you think of me?

And I was drivin' on the northbound road
A song came on the radio
Caught me with my guard down low
And I can't deny

It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
Made me think of you again, yeah

I don't picture you no more
But when I close my eyes, you're still etched in my thoughts
You still drive me up the wall
Stupid things you say, oh, I wish we could still talk
And I still have your sweater
Though it's torn and frayed, there's no need to throw it away
No, I don't think of you at all
Except every second of every day

I was drivin' on the northbound road
A song came on the radio
Caught me with my guard down low
And I can't deny

It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again

Without a word of warnin'
The sound began transformin'
We're back to where we started

I was drivin' on the northbound road
Song came on the radio
Caught me with my guard down low
And I can't deny

It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again

It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again

Made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
It made me think of you again, you again
