

Too Deep

Richie Kotzen

You've been knokin' around this town for years,
Too much time spent nursin' your own tears,
While the traffic is rushin' by you can't find a ride
And it's lookin' like there's nothin' left to me

I was back in the neighborhood where we lived
So much has changed yet you still remained the same
Well it's fear that's been tellin' you
There's nothin' you can say or do tonight

And it feels like the knife's in too deep
And it's lookin' like there's nothin' left to me
Well it feel s like the hooks have sank too deep
And it's not that you don't hunger for more
You're stuck because the sand became too deep

There's a woman who once said she belived
Spent her emotions on material needs
There's a mirror on the wall that reflects it all
And it's time they keep runnin' from
The truth that's never spoken of It's all there for everyone to see

And it feels like the knife's in too deep
And it's lookin' like there's nothin' left to me
Well it feel s like the hooks have sank too deep
And it's not that you don't hunger for more
You're stuck because the sand became too deep

You are confusion wrapped in fear
Still fighting not to disappear

And it feels like the knife's in too deep
And it's lookin' like there's nothin' left to me
Well it feel s like the hooks have sank too deep
And it's all that you've been wanting for you
That's turned ypu into what you are
It's all because the lie became too deep
