

You're Never Alone

Rick Price

I've got a picture hanging on the wall
It's hard to believe
You were ever that small
Now you've got bigger ideas
Greater ambitions
Higher to reach but further to fall
It used to be you needed me
But now you've grown
So tall and strong
Now you're on your own

But when the walls of your world
Come tumbling down
When you heart starts breaking
And there's no-one around
Just look over your shoulder
Where ever you roam
And remember, you're never alone

You can love without limit
From deep in your soul
If you keep a young heart son
You will never grow old
You can fly to the moon
As high as it seems
But you can crash to the ground
On the wings of your dreams
But you will see...
There will be times when you feel ten feet tall
Times you'll have it all

But when the walls of your world
Come tumbling down
When you heart starts breaking
And there's no-one around
Just look over your shoulder
Where ever you roam
And remember, you're never alone

I can't stop you from living
I can't blame you for trying
I can't stop you from loving
I can't keep you from crying

But when the walls of your world
Come tumbling down
When you heart starts breaking
And there's no-one around
Just look over your shoulder
Where ever you roam
And remember, you're never alone
Remember, you're never alone
