I should have known better,
Than to expect it all.
You want everything,
And you end up grabbing at air.

I had so much to give, So much hope, we held each other high. But the heroes are gone, And all that's left is you and me.

I learned the hard way,
That life should be easy,
But I want you to know it was hard to show,
The things that I know now.

And all that's left is you and me, And here we are, Nowhere.
