

Inheritance

Righteous Vendetta

There can be no cowards
When the battle awaits our souls
We must forward with the power of the one who saves

Don't think I have come to bring peace
I've not come to rest the nations
I've come to bring you a sword

You underestimate the power of the words
That I am speaking to you
You deny the power, granted unto these

Hands are clean
We have conquered the world this time
The eldest of evils, will not shake us
For we hold all power

For it was spoken that a man would redeem the nations
A humble servant, glorious with the riches of heaven
Became a man, without an ounce of guilt
Pierced for our transgressions, crushed for our inequities
Mocked before the world, died, was resurrected
Now reigns at the right hand of the father

If only they knew, if only they could see
Our inheritance

Hands are clean
We have conquered the world this time
The eldest of evils, will not shake us
For we hold all power

You underestimate the power of the words
That I am speaking to you
