

I Don't Think I Live There Anymore

ROAM

Floating, no worries
Above my body below
Dreaming, no hurry
It either will or it won't

So I jumped in my car, turned the keys, drove so far
In the end I just ran out of road
I turned left, I turned right
By the end of the night
I arrived where they told me to go

I guess I'm knocking on my door
But I don't think I live there anymore
Oh the fire took the ceiling and the floor
So I don't think I live there anymore
No no no no
I don't think I live there anymore

They keep things above ground
Just for now, I settle down
(Cause that's what you get)
Reading between lines
You start to find there's more to life
(Than what you've found yet)

Opened my eyes, tried to see through disguise
In the end I just bought what they sold
I turned left, I turned right
By the end of the night
I arrived where they told me to go

I guess I'm knocking on my door
But I don't think I live there anymore
Oh the fire took the ceiling and the floor
So I don't think I live there anymore
I think it's time they let me go
My body's such an empty fucking hole
I see it move but I'm not in control
No I don't think they'll ever let me go
No no no no

So I jumped in my car, turned the keys, drove so far
In the end I just ran out of road
I turned left, I turned right
By the end of the night
I arrived where they told me to go

I guess I'm knocking on my door
But I don't think I live there anymore
Oh the fire took the ceiling and the floor
So I don't think I live there anymore
No no no no
I don't think I live there anymore
