

Breathe Out

Rob Thomas

When the world is making promises that it can't keep
You alone your only friend
Breathe out, breathe in, breathe out again
When the road you're on is longer than
You ever thought you'd go
You're always on the mend
Breathe out, breathe in, breathe out again

That weight on your shoulder
Is worse when you're older
The lines that you've drawn will wear thin
When all that's inside you
Is screaming for rescue
Breathe out again

When the life you live is falling short of what you want
But it's all that you can give
Breathe out, breathe in, breathe out again
Breathe out, breathe in, breathe out again

That weight on your shoulder
Is worse when you're older
The lines that you've drawn will wear thin
When all that's inside you
Is screaming for rescue
Breathe out again

When the world is making promises that it can't keep
You alone your only friend
Breathe out, breathe in, breathe out again
Breathe out, breathe in, breathe out again
