The Edge

Robbie Williams

I used to wander to the edge and look down
I used to pile up promises and then leave town
You should have heard my best excuses so profound and so untrue
And now I wake up next to you

Each time I slip feels like the world could spy us
To underline my most impure desires
For only those who sweat by love they were mental through and through
But now I wake up next to you

And the nights are sill as long as they ever were
All the things that could go wrong, well they still occur
But when the violence unbreaks the morning and it will find me there
Next to you

I had to lose myself for years to find this
This took the cruelty and abuse for kindness
Didn't know yet what to keeps it shut, my own blindness stole the view
But now I wake up next to you

And the nights are still as long as they ever were
All the things that could go wrong, well they still occur
But when the violence unbreaks the morning and it will find me there
Next to you

When did it all go right?
Where did it all go right?

When did it all go right?
Where did it all go right?

I used to wander to the edge and look down
I used to pile up promises and then leave town
You should have heard my best excuses so profound and so untrue
And now I wake up next to you

When did it all go right?

I'll always walk back from the edge
To find a way to you

Where did it all go right?

I'll always walk back from the edge
Find a way to get to you

When did it all go right?

I'll always walk back from the edge
And find a way to you

Where did it all go right?

I'll always walk back from the edge
Find a way to get to you
