

Something Your Heart Has Been Telling Me

Roberta Flack

Last night I heard you calling
I heard you calling out a name I did not know
I woke up and tears were falling
Yes, tears were falling all around my bed of woe

Here's the situation
Right before my eyes I can't ignore
Your new infatuation
And I knew it long before

There is something your heart has been telling me
And it's something I already know
You're a man who conceals all the things that he feels
And won't let go, even though
There's a love burning inside of you
With a flame so strong and so bright
But I know you so well
I just had to tell you tonight

Today the day is dawning
You sit in silence in the half light of the room
Outside the sun is shining
I keep on smiling, trying hard to pierce the gloom

Here's the situation
Right before my eyes I can't ignore
Your new infatuation
But I knew it long before

There is something your heart has been telling me
But it's something I already know
You're a man who conceals all the things that he feels
And won't let go, even though
There's a love burning inside of you
With a flame so strong and so bright
But I love you so well
I just had to tell you tonight

Oh, think of the lives that we have lived
And of the times we cried
Let's give our love half a chance
And we will be alright
Yeah, yeah
Oh, ho

Oh, there's something my heart has been telling me
But it's something I already know
Why try to conceal all the things that you feel?
And not let go, even though
There's a love burning inside of me
With a flame so hot and so bright
Oh, I love you so well
I just had to tell you tonight (Tonight)
Tell you tonight (Tonight)

And it's something I already know
You conceal the things you feel

And won't let go, even though
There's a love
And the flame is so hot and so bright
I love you so well
I want to tell you tonight
