You Make Me Love You

Roger Hodgson

Alright, you make me love you
it's alright, you make me love you I said alright, you make me love you
it's alright, you make me love you

When the winter wind is a-blowin' well you never know where it's goin'
For the land is cold and the night is closing in You can feel your heart is getting older, you can feel the world is getting colder
And it feels so good with you standing next to me

Oh baby alright, I think I love you,
It's alright, you make me love you
Oh I said alright, I think I love you,
It's alright, you make me love you

Now the days are all getting shorter they seem to slip away like water
For the land is cold and the night is closing in But you're always there when I need you when it feels the world is against you Oh it feels so close with you standing next to me

Oh baby alright, I think I love you, it's alright, I think I need you Oh babe it's alright
I think I want you, I think I need you Oh babe it's alright, oh babe it's alright now that you're here

Oh it's an icy wind that's a-blowin' and you never know where it's goin'
But it feels so good when you're curled up close to me

Oh baby alright I think I love you
it's alright you make me love you I said it's alright, I think I need you
it's alright you make me love you...
