

Twice

Romy

When I was younger
I cast you aside
To the arms of another
Now it haunts me at night
Years of trying to get you
Off my brain, off my brain
Never knowing if you felt
The same way, the same way
'Cause I've had other lovers
But they don't have your eyes

Who am I to deny
The shivers running down my spine
And how I'm dying inside
Every time we say goodnight?
And who am I to deny
I throw my hands into the sky?
It's strange enough once in a lifetime
It must be love if it happens twice

Pull back the covers
Let me feel the warmth of your skin
We're still undiscovered
But I feel you sinking in
Still afraid of what you
Mean to me, mean to me
But without you, I am
Incomplete, incomplete

Who am I to deny
The shivers running down my spine
And how I'm dying inside
Every time we say goodnight?
And who am I to deny
I throw my hands into the sky?
It's strange enough once in a lifetime
It must be love if it happens twice

So I'll get it right, I'll get it right
I'll get it right the second time
It must be love if it happens twice
I'll get it right the second time
So I'll get it right, I'll get it right
I'll get it right the second time
It must be love if it happens twice
I'll get it right the second time
So I'll get it right, I'll get it right
I'll get it right the second time
It must be love if it happens twice
I'll get it right the second time
So I'll get it right, I'll get it right
