

I Worship The Woman You Walked On

Ronnie Dunn

You don't wrong a heart, of a woman that loves you
You don't turn your back on her tears
The arms you leave lonely, won't wait forever (You know what?)
That's why I'm here

'Cause I worship the woman you walked on
I hold her at night, 'til she's satisfied
Oh, I try to right all you did wrong
I worship the woman you walked on

I've met the wrongs-haunt-you, the should-haves, the want-tos
Are ghosts now in your empty bed
You gave up her soft touch, turned your back on her sweet love
You must have, been out of your head

Oh, I worship the woman you walked on
I hold her at night, 'til she's satisfied
Oh, I try to right all you did wrong
I worship the woman you walked on

Oh, I worship the woman you walked on
I hold her at night, 'til she's satisfied
I try to right all you did wrong
I worship the woman you walked on

Oh, I worship
Oh, the woman
You walked on

You don't wrong a heart, of a woman that loves you
You don't turn your back on her tears
