

I Remember Dancing

Roses & Revolutions

I thought I saw you, you were standing in the field
Your eyes were closed, your arms like a shield
I thought I saw you, or maybe it was a dream
I thought I heard a voice, a voice calling out
It sounded like a child that just found its mouth
I thought I heard a voice, or maybe it was a dream

I remember dancing late at night in the middle of the street
The friends, the music, the laughter, it was all I'd ever need
For a moment in time, I could finally breathe

I heard that you left and you went out on your own
Do you ever regret those past stones that you've thrown?
I heard that you left, or maybe it was a dream
I feel like I've been here, have I been here before?
'Cause it looks so familiar, the name on the door
I think I have, or maybe it was a dream

I remember dancing late at night in the middle of the street
The friends, the music, the laughter, it was all I'd ever need
And for a moment in time, I could finally breathe
I remember dancing
I remember dancing
I remember dancing

I remember dancing late at night in the middle of the street
The friends, the music, the laughter, it was all I'd ever need
And for a moment in time, I could finally breathe
I remember dancing
I remember dancing
I remember dancing

I thought I saw you, but maybe it was a dream
