

Question

Roses & Revolutions

It's just a question, I think you have the answer
It's just a question of why she's in your sweatshirt
It's just a question, well do you think about her?

I'm not one to call it love, call it luck
Call it anything you want
Feel it out, dress it up
Into what it never was
You're in my mind like a best kept secret
I've always known I wasn't good to ever keep it

It's just a question, I think you have the answer
It's just a question of why she's in your sweatshirt
It's just a question, well do you think about her?

For a second I really thought that we'd last
When you kissed my head and said
It's you and me until the end
But you drove to her instead
You left me there in a thousand pieces
It took a while for me to really believe it

It's just a question, I think you have the answer
It's just a question of why she's in your sweatshirt
It's just a question, well do you think about her?

When I think back to the day that we met
I feel something in me change
I never thought that you'd be
The one that got away
I can't deny that I'll always love you
And in my dreams, I'll always have you
