Kinney

Rostam

We could turn the lights out
Lying with the blankets up
Listening to trucks pass
Underneath the street lamps
We could sleep or stay up
Wake up when the lights up
Just before the sun cracks
Over through the rooftop

This shouldn't work but it does
Didn't expect to spend the night
But I'm in your arms
No, this shouldn't work but it does
Didn't expect to spend the night
But I'm in your arms

Your back seats piled up
With gym clothes and makeup
In your car I fall asleep
Pass out in the front seat
On the pavement I was half-awake
Half-ocean, half-sky
Half-shore, half-tide
Now I'm free

And we lived together
Lived for three nights in a hotel
Listening to traffic
Underneath a blanket
We knew we could stay up
Wake up when the lights up
Just before the sun cracks
Over through the rooftop

This shouldn't work but it does
Didn't expect to spend the night
But I'm in your arms

Your back seats piled up
With gym clothes and makeup
In your car I fall asleep
Pass out in the front seat
On the pavement you were on my mind
Half-ocean, half-sky
Half-shore, half-tide
Now I'm free

Isn't it just like life
To tell you that you're not who you thought you were
It's not what you thought it was
And you should feel free

Isn't it just like life
To tell you that you're not who you thought you were
It's not what you thought it was
And you should feel free

Tištěno z pisnicky-akordy.cz

Sponzor: www.srovnavac.cz - vyberte si pojištění online!