

Shell

Roy Blair

Give me some familiar 'cus I can't grow young again
And we feel so familiar but I can't put my finger on it
You take a breath and step ahead
But you still end up a dead end
We could last forever
We're one in a million

I saw you yesterday right by the shell
I said you can have me all to yourself

I won't run 'till I'm 44
I can't help myself
It felt better when I hit the floor
Made damn sure that I can't wake up
You asked how I felt and I told ya
You said that you wouldn't go back
But you don't change
You just told me what I wanted to hear
I've been
A little indifferent
To this whole thing
Minding my own business
And I ain't much better
Than what I condemn
But the difference
Is that I'm trying
To be better
Than what I'm coming from
And so they never come out here

Give me some familiar 'cus I can't grow young again
And we feel so familiar but I can't put my finger on it
You take a breath and step ahead
But you still end up a dead end
We could last forever
We're one in a million

I saw you yesterday right by the shell
I said you can have me all to yourself

Watched you from the sidelines
As you make another play
And it hit me like a landmine
Surprised I made it through the day, the day
I'm on my feet
I'm on my feet, for now, for now
I wanna be
Wherever you are around
