

You fit my most vivid description of a woman that I wanna meet
So I think you should listen I'll never care about the distance
I'll travel across some bridges, ridges, and divets
Just to make sure you're no longer missing

In my heart, I know it's you
Yea you're the one, I know it's true
You tell no lies, I've told a few
We gotta try, and that's the truth

We'll lose control of us, it's imminent
So I think we can get a little intimate
I wanna hear you real intent
I hope you to make it build as friends
We peel away our innocence like bandaids on some moons we feel should heal again

I know its hard to love a poet
My mind is filled with commotion
My thoughts go deeper than fallen angels living under oceans
My thoughts are getting corrosive
My brain is slowly eroding
But all I want you to know is

In my heart, I know it's you
Yea you're the one, I know it's true
You tell no lies, I've told a few
We gotta try, and that's the truth

I wanna
Explore your body
We'll call it an expedition
I'm on a hunt for some treasure
I'll never share what I'm given
I've risen a thousand times
After getting kicked to the dirt
I broken bones, got black eyes
But heartbreak is worse
I never want you to experience no bad events
Not even accidents, like friends swerving through traffic
While you is stuck in the passenger
They ask me what I'm doing
I tell them "I'm running after her"
And I don't ever want nobody after you