

Aching for More

Ryan Adams

The static on the TV
The static on the news
The sky over the city
It's purple and bruised

Dark clouds rolling in
Still no word from you
Concrete slabs and rust
And nothing to do

You know you're breaking my heart
You know what you're breaking
And my heart's still aching for it
You know you're breaking my heart
You know what you're breaking
And my heart's still aching for more

Out on the horizon
I see a blood red sun
Streets filled with trash
Neon and honking cars

Stalled out on the runway
Our train's got so lost
Poison the gasoline
To broken to take off

You know you're breaking my heart
You know what you're breaking
And my heart's still aching for it
You know you're breaking my heart
You know what you're breaking
And my heart's still aching for more

You know you're breaking my heart
You know what you're breaking
And my heart's still aching for it
You know you're breaking my heart
You know what you're breaking
And my heart's still aching for more

No promises, no hope
Nobody left to use
They gave you enough rope
So you can learn to tie the noose

Sometimes nothing's right
So there's nothing left to lose
We're all headed to the same place
Either direction you choose

You know you're breaking my heart
You know what you're breaking
And my heart's still aching for it
You know you're breaking my heart
You know what you're breaking
And my heart's still aching for it

You know you're breaking my heart
You know you're breaking my heart
You know you're breaking my heart
You know what you're breaking
And my heart's still aching for more