

Wallowing

Ryan Caraveo

Sometimes I feel crazy
Like I lost half of my mind
Moving outta decline
Without a ladder to climb
And half of the time
I feel like I'm actually fine
Battling my personality's a habit of mine
I have it in line
Until I start to think
I zoned off so long I forgot to blink
Till my hands go numb and I drop my drink
And the bath keeps fillin' while I start to sink
My heart just shrinks
While I drown in the tub
Phone ringing but I can't hear the sound of the buzz
Feelin' like paradise after downing them drugs
I don't think it'll kill me but I'm down if it does
An' as I drown in the silence
The phone ringing by the sink starts soundin' like a siren
Heard mama's voice saying this is real life shit
Boy I didn't raise you to be nothing like this
You better start fightin'
And if you can't swing em' hands little man
Then you better start bitin'
You better start breathin'
You got a little brother
He needs someone to look upto and to believe in
You too young to be leaving
And you and the man up above ain't even
Pain and regret
I'm laying right between 'em
I've had ten drinks and I still haven't eaten
Head keeps pounding
Heart still beatin'
Water starts bubbling cause I start screamin'
Climbed out the tub and I started dry heavin'
Thinking that it's time that I slaughtered my demons
I, let it sink in until the moons gone
I'm done feelin' hollow
I been wallowin' too long
How can I sit and not bother to move on
When I got a dream and a father to prove wrong
I mean I gotta keep fightin' this
I made it this far after all types o' shit
Still haven't grown
Haven't had a wife and kids
I mean I'm, nineteen with a life to live
And sometimes it gets a lot harder than this Think it's no good for you but a part of it is Don't agree please pardon me then
And Lord keep watching incase I fall off again
