Empty Show

Saara Aalto

Darling, take a seat now, let's talk, but I don't know how
There has been something changing, do you agree?
I'm feeling quite uneasy, 'cause it used to be so easy
To speak what's on my mind, but now I can't unwind

I've had enough of feeling nothing while you're speaking
About the things that tend to give me butterflies

Where is the love?
Is it dying as time flies and we're growing apart?
We need to clear the air to save this love affair
But I don't know where to start

Should I let you go to end this empty show?
And take a bow all alone, 'cause I need to see the light

Once again you're working, all the time you're working
I'm home alone and crying with my piano
'Cause I'm still young and goodhearted and I wanna feel wanted
Not someone to take for granted, I am more than that

Darling, darling, darling, can't you hear I'm calling?
Let me know how hopelessly you need my touch
Where is the love?

Should I let you go to end this empty show?
And take a bow all alone, 'cause I need to see the light

Where is the love?
Is it dying as time flies and we're growing apart?
We need to clear the air to save this love affair
But I don't know where to start

Should I let you go to end this empty show?
And take a bow all alone, 'cause I need to see the light

Should I let you go to end this empty show?
And take a bow all alone, 'cause I need to see the light
