I spend half of each day just eyeing the clock And dream of all the things I'd like to do 'n nothing ever changes from day to day I've just been quarding this desk for you It's a mayday, it's a mayday, There must be something else I could do It's a mayday, it's a mayday, Instead of guarding this desk for you Time's up! You've been wishing your life away Time's up! You've been wishing your life away I'm getting very tired of waiting for the weekend Then there's nothing when it comes around I need a little more excitement, give me some adventure I don't know how you've held me this long It's a mayday, it's a mayday, Time just marches on It's a mayday, it's a mayday, I don't know how you've held me this long Time's up! You've been wishing your life away Time's up! You've been wishing your life away Chances are chances and I know I've had a few But at the time it just seemed wrong Now I'm sitting here wondering, waiting Watching out his window And I'm sure my day will come It's a mayday, it's a mayday, Time just marches on It's a mayday, it's a mayday, And I know my day will come
