

Washing you away in the rain
These october skies are grey
The puddles seem to fade
Memories evaporate & I don't know what to say

And you noticed I was focused and you were gone
I was hopeless while you were smoking in the sun
And I don't know how to wait
All the problems, all the good but also what's wrong
I was hoping I'd be enough for you all along
And I'm not sure that you'll stay

And I'm not sure that you'll
That you'll stay
And I'm not sure that you'll
That you'll stay
But, I'm not sure that you'll stay

I watch you walk away
Did you get enough space?
All our affection is erased
There's water on my lips
Some are salty to the taste
The ones from my face

What happens when all of our friends notice the storm?
We're to blame for all the flooding and not the calm
We're drowning in ourselves
It hurts to say we were great
We're nothing at all
How can something that we built wash away?
So long.
I'm not sure that you'll stay.

And I'm not sure that you'll
That you'll stay
And I'm not sure that you'll
That you'll stay
And I'm not sure that you'll stay
But, I'm not sure that you'll stay
